BOOKER T. WASHINGTON'S SOLUTION OF THE NEGRO PROBLEM.

MUST BE EDUCATED

BRAINS OF NO USE IF OPPORTUNITY IS WITHHELD.

Distinguished Colored Orator and Eduentor Addressed a Large Audience at the Central High School Last Night-An Honor to His Race.

Booker T. Washington, president of the Tuskegee, Ala., colored normal school, addressed an audience last night that almost completely filled the large assembly room of the Central high school. He was introduced by Mrs. Jackson, president of the

Mr. Washington advanced some sound. practical ideas for the solution of the colored problem. While a believer in education, he believes it is simply a means to attain an end, and that end is to teach the colored race to bring intelligence and brains to bear in their daily work. "I was in a town recently," said he, "and

I noticed a well dressed negro standing around doing nothing. And he did nothing all the time I was there. Finally I asked some one who he was, and the informa-tion was that he was an educated man, one of the smartest in town. 'But what does he do?' I asked. 'Oh, nothing, he's just smart.' Another class of educated negroes I frequently come across are the 'leading colored politicians' of a town. They don't do anything; they are simply 'leading colored politicians.' And unless we take steps to utilize what we learn we are all in danger of becoming 'just smart,' or 'leading colored politicians.' '

"I will tell you what will at least help the solution of this difficulty. Treat the negro as a Christian and as a gentleman, both in the North and in the South. In view of the present discussion as to who shall live in certain parts of the American view of the present discussion as to who shall live in certain parts of the American continent, it is a great satisfaction to know that the negro is the only race that ever came to America by invitation. The white man came against the strong protest of the original inhabitants in 142. We did not come until we were forcibly invited to come, and, in view of this fact, it would not be polite to leave, and I guess we will stay. The solution of the negro problem does not lie in driving us out of the country. "We are going to stay and help the white man work out some of the great problems that now confront him. It is in the black belt that the negro problem is the most difficult of sejution. Slavery worked almost as much permanent injury to the white man in that section as it did to the black and the effect is perceptible to-day. Just so long as the negro is uneducated in the South, just so long will the white man have an excuse for dragging the black man down. We must study the needs of the people. Too often we are tempted to treat each individual under a separate code, when all need the same system. What we have to do is to prepare a way for the black graduate from school and college to create a business for himself. The white boy has that business already created. The black boy wants manual training; he also wants a trade so he can earn a living and turn to practical coount the education he has received.

Negro Should Have a Trade.

Negro Should Have a Trade. "He should have a special trade, a special employment, and he should be taught the best way in which to turn his gifts to advantage. The greatest problem of all is to flad something for the educated black to do; it is easy to get the education. This is a practical world; it cares very little about what you and I know, but it cares a whole lot about what you and I can do.

"If there is no use for the talents of the black man, he had better remain ignorant. We must bring brains and skill into the class of work that is at our doors. We

We must bring brains and skill into the class of work that is at our doors. We have farming, washing and barbering. It is our legitimate work, and no labor that is honest is degrading, either to an educated or an uneducated negro. But the white man is applying skill and brains to all this class of labor and is taking the work away from us. As a farmer, he uses modern machinery and raises corn cheaper and with less labor than the black man. The barber trade was at one time left entirely to the black man, but the white man saw there was money in it and he introduced modern ideas, called it the tonsorial business and the black man's work was gone. I want to see the colored boy get a good education, graduate, and then go and start a brick yard, a steam laundry or something else of that class that he can make a living at. We must be producers as well as consumers, and put dignity and brains into these occupations. Industrial training will improve the moral and religious life of the black man. "One great difference between the black man and the white man is that the former is always preparing for death and the latter is always preparing for death and the latter is always preparing to go into some

Booker T. Washington is an example of what a strong will, combined with intelli-gence, can accomplish. Born a slave, in GREAT RISK TAKEN BY RAILWAY what a strong will, combined with intelligence, can accomplish. Born a slave, in 1859, he is to-day the head of one of the finest colored normal schools in the United States, and possesses an education that would fit him for any profession. When a boy he was freed by his master, a Virginian, who at the same time liberated all the rest of his slaves. Going with his mother to the coal mines of Virginia he began to earn his living with the pick. While there employed he learned that somewhere in the country was an institution where colored boys could be educated, even if poor, and from that time he had but one object in life, to find that place and enter as a student. When he did find it, at Hampton. Va., he was possessed of but 50 cents. He finally graduated with great honor, and then determined to go to the black belt of Alabama and do for his race what had been done for him. His normal, training school is the first of that resolve. "We try to give the boys and girls an education that will fit them to make a living," said Mr. Washington. "We started our school in a cabin with thirty scholars. To-day we have hundreds of thousands of tolars including wagons, buggles and bricks, and we also have a job printing outfit and have six job presses constantly at work. When we first began the work the white people looked the other way when I passed them on the street. To-day they say that the town of Tuskegoo has been inestimably benefited by the institute." trainmen to take long risks on life and property almost every day in the year. To be able to write the "O. T." on the big record book when the end of the division is reached is the overshadowing motive which controls every conductor from the time he starts on a run until it is finished, and it is instilled into the minds of every man who works under him. A striking instance of the risks sometimes taken occurred yesterday on the fast mail from St. Louis, which ran with the mail "stor-

A fire in the mail car was stubbornly eating its way through the heavy flooring for four and a half hours while the train was flying across the state at its schedule speed of forty miles an hour. After Bryan's defeat Miller wanted his money back and went to D. V. Rieger, cashier of the Missouri National bank, who was stakeholder, and demanded that it be returned. Mr. Rieger said the money had been turned over to Mr. Christie, the winner.

Miller next brought suit against Christie, the commission company and Rieger, to recover the $500. It was decided yesterday, by Judge Slover, a Democrat, that Miller was entitled to the return of his money at the hands of the Michael Commission Company, but as that firm has failed, the judgment is worthless. The car at that time was so full of smoke the clerks could not see the length of the car. They ran all the way from Jefferson City to within twenty-four miles of Kansas City, but further progress was out of the qu tion.

The fire was fought from inside and below the car for fifteen minutes at the first stop, near Lee's Summit. The train proceeded on its way but the fire made headway to such an extent the train had to be stopped at Independence, and at the Little Blue. When the train entered the Union depot the car was still smoking from the fire concealed in its timbers.

H. W. Wray was the mail clerk in charge. He was employed in the second baggage car, having detailed Mail Clerks Simpson and Whetton to the forward car. It is supposed sparks from the engine started the fire. Smoke was first detected by Clerk Simpson shortly after leaving Jefferson City. It was issuing from the openings around the steam pipes which pass through the floor.

The clerks agreed to let the fire burn rather than delay the train, and they were not changed in their resolution even when the car became filled with smoke to the stiffing point, and they realized the danger of the gas retorts exploding should the pipes of the tank become overheated. Only the appearance of flames near the center of the car moved them to stop the train by the air brake appliance.

Then it was the train came to a standstill out in the hills east of independence. Mail Clerks Whetton and Simpson were assisted by all the employes in fighting the fire, which by this time had burned through the floor near the center of the car and was threatening the valuable cargo of mail. The will of America Ross was filed in the probate court yesterday. She left a "square acre" to each of three daughters, Marietta Felix, Laura Ross and Arinda Stewart; one acre and a half to her son Edgar; half an acre to her step-son, Dorsey Ross and $1 to Luther Ross. All the rest of the property was left to the daughters. ters.

Shackleford, who has been called in by Judge John W. Wof-ford to try the Dr. J. D. Goddard murder case. He was notified by telegram over a floor near the center of the car and threatening the valuable cargo of mail to-morrow, having been called in to try William H. the floor near the center of the car and was threatening the valuable cargo of mail. Water was thrown on the flames, but it was found the fire had crept between the sections of flooring and was insidiously eating its way along at several other places. Axes were brought and the flooring cut open.

The train resumed its journey and had reached Independence when the fire again broke out, and some time was spent in subduing it. The train had not proceeded five minutes from this stop until the draught of the running train caused the fire to break out again, more fiercely than before. The mail agents fought it from inside the train for awhile, chopping into the floor and throwing out the burning boards, while the train flew on in an effort to make up part of the lost time. The openings, however, only gave the smoldering fire oxygen and caused it to break forth worse than before. A third time the train was brought to a standstill, near the Little Blue, only a few miles outside the city, and nearly twenty minutes more were lost in fighting it.

The burned car was brought into the depot at Kansas City and cut out as soon as unloaded. It was taken across the river to the Missouri Pacific yards and flooded. Fire was still burning in the flooring when it was taken in charge by the yardmen. The mail cierks all belong to the St. Louis division and the matter will be reported to the department this morning. Mike Nuccio, who shot and killed Will-iam Ewing in the latter's home, near Fifth and Main streets, one evening last summer, will probably be tried on the charge of murder in the first degree this week. A verdict for $525 was awarded to Daniel Hester in Judge Gates' court yesterday in his suit for $1,000 damages against the Jacob Dold Packing Company.

The trial of Eliwood Hollingsworth for the murder of Alex Schwab was on in the criminal court yesterday and will probably be concluded to-morrow.

Howard M. Holden, assignee of the Kansas City Safe Deposit and Savings bank, has announced that the second dividend of 5 per cent will be paid to depositors probably within thirty days.

FLYERS TO STOP.

The Time War Threatened Between the Chicago Lines Will Be Settled. The Chicago-Omaha lines have concluded that the twelve hour trains between the two cities are not a paying proposition and two cities are not a paying proposition and it is probable that they will be discontinued March I, and it is more than likely that the present fast trains will be taken off before that time. Already there is talk of returning to the old fourteen hour schedule, and it may be safely assumed that the "flyers" will soon be things of the past.

The interesting question has not yet reached the dignity of a called meeting of the interested lines, but it is asserted that something is being done to reach an understanding, and that the lines will meet

In the meantime the Burlington is supposed to be going ahead arranging a schedule that will cut off two hours from its present running time, and which is to become effective next Sunday, 'If this is done, the time war will be on, and the fight will involve the trains between Chlcago and St. Paul, Denver and Kansas City. For this reason it is thought the Northwestern and the Rock Island will agree to take off their fast trains on that day. Such a change would have the effect of preventing the Burlington from making changes and the old amicable understanding between railroads would be restored. The abandonment of the Rock Island fast passenger train will possibly necessitate the running of a fast mail train. In spite of the frequent assertions that the Northwestern fast mail train and the Rock Island fast mail and passenger train were put on with the view of securing the transcontinental mail carrying contract, it is generally understood that it was done to prevent the Burlington from getting the mail contracts those roads had already secured. The shortening of Burlington fast mail made it possible for that company to deliver mail at Rock Island and Northwestern points sooner than these roads could do it. Hence it was necessity that brought out the fast trains of the competitors of the Burlington. derstanding, and that the lines will meet to discuss the affair within a few days. While rescuing the household goods of Thomas Daly from his burning house at 2211 Jefferson street, at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, the neighbors carried out the cook stove with its fire still burning. The neighbors and members of the family warmed their hands over the stove as it stood in the yard. Owing to slowness in turning in an alarm the house was almost destroyed before the department arrived. The loss was $500. One of the back curtains caught fire at the Coates opera house at 5:15 p. m. yesterday during the matinee performance of the Alice Nielsen company. It was quickly extinguished by Fireman Daniel Fitzgerald, of station No. 4, who was stationed there by the fire department. The fire was caused by crossed electric wires. No alarm was given and the audience knew nothing of the incident.

CONSUMPTION

RODE IN A BURNING CAR 66TTHE GREAT WHITE PLAGU

Because of the striking resemblance snowstorm, CONSUMPTION has been aptly called "The GREAT WHITE PLAGUE." It may be said, also, of CON-SUMPTION that as a rule it comes on so presence or near approach is seldom suspected.

There is perhaps a slight cough, but little attention is paid to it. "Oh, it'll soon pass off." says the victim; "it doesn't amount to anything." But it perhaps does amount to a great deal. It may be the first danger signal that has been sounded. There has also been more or less "wasting away," a gradual loss of flesh and strength, that perhaps has attracted little or no attention. As the disease progresses there may b

Regulating the Oven.

When particular baking is receiving attention, and several unfamiliar dishes are being manufactured, it is of special importance to have the oven in perfect condition, and as far as possible under the control of the cook. The best of stoves, says an experienced housewife, are tricky sometimes, and bear watching. Nearly each one has its pet peculiarity—a tendency to hurn at the bottom, or a habit of scorching at the top, while the lower part remains raw and sodden. Familiarity will enable the cook to correct these difficulties. She will overcome the first fault by placing the grating or a pan under the baking dish, and the other by covering the cake or loaf with a pan or paper until the bottom is done. A plain piece of manilia paper placed over the top of a cake will insure thorough, even baking, when without this arrangement the top would become scorched long before the cake was baked through.

Death Through a Doll.

In London the other evening Violet Frances Martin, the 6-year-old daushter of a watchmaker, was left alone in the kitchen at play with her doll. For the time being the child was a mother, and the doll her baby, and she seems to have been pretending to dry the doll's tiny clothes before the fire when they became ignited. The flames caught her pinaiore and she was dreadfully burnt, dying in the Great Northern hospital.

From the Washington Star.

"I can't see what could have caused some of that canned goods to turn out so badly," said an army contractor.

"Neither do I," answered his partner, "unless it was the language some of those officers may have used in its presence."
